Every person has some talent or the other. Make a list of what you are good at - this will give you a list of your talents. This list is the starting point for choosing the right career.
The twist is that the things you are good at may not be the thing you like doing. So also make a list of the things that you like doing. The items that appear in both List 1 and List 2 are possibly the things you should consider a career in. Simple, eh!
